Architect Looks Over Site of New Methodist Church

The committee who have in charge the building of the new church for the Methodist society who recently sold their house of worship to the Temple of Israel are taking active steps toward the erection of another church edifice.

On Tuesday a Boston architect was here in conference with the committee and the lot of land on Miller avenue owned by the society was visited and the matter was thoroughly discussed. It is said to be the intention of the society to erect a stone church and work will be commenced on the same as early as possible and the work rushed to completion as by the terms of sale, the society relinquishes its church property on State street the first of next September.

St. John's Lodge of Masons Entertained By Its Women Friends

Glass That Was Owned by John Stavers, Who Kept Earl of Halifax Tavern, Presented by Rt. Wor. Bro. Albert R. Junkins

Tuesday night was a memorable one in the history of St. John's Lodge as No. 1, A. F. and A. M., and will long be remembered by those fortunate enough to be present.

On the occasion of the celebration of the 175th anniversary of St. John's Lodge in June last, the members devoted one night to the entertainment of their wives and women friends.

In recognition of this bounteous entertainment on the part of the members of St. John's Lodge and their women friends. The assemblage was deemed fitting by the ladies to take steps to return the compliment in some fitting manner. Accordingly Mrs. Albert R. Junkins, Mrs. Albert H. Sides, Mrs. John D. Randall, Mrs. William D. Grace, Mrs. George J. Kaula, Mrs. George D. Whittier and the wives of the officers of the lodge resolved themselves into a committee and began the soliciting of funds for the purchase of a solid mahogany cabinet to present to the lodge as a receptacle for the numerous historic souvenirs in possession of this old Masonic body.

As was to be expected this efficient committee met with good success and the presentation was arranged for Tuesday evening.

When the exercises commenced Tuesday evening there was a large and representative gathering of members of St. John's Lodge and their women friends. The assemblage was called to order by Worshipful Master William B. Randall, who in well chosen words welcomed the ladies and stated the object of the gathering.

The order of exercises was as follows:

Selection of the Masonic Orchestra;

McNamara Brothers and Their Nemesis, Detective W. J. Burns.

The cabinet is about eight feet high and equipped with glass doors and shelves and is admirable design for the purpose for which it is to be used.

Mrs. Philbrick remarks were as follows:

Worshipful Master, Wardens, Brethren and Ladies of St. John's Lodge.

A very pleasant duty devolves upon me this evening that giving expression to the good wishes and kind feelings of the ladies who in a way are connected with this lodge.

During the very interesting celebration of the one hundred and seventy-fifth anniversary of St. John's lodge, an entertainment was given to the ladies, which pleased and gratified us very much.

As a part of the ceremonies of the evening, these were presented to the lodge, an old masonic apron, valued not alone for its antiquity, but for the associations connected with it.

This is only one of the many valuable relics which have been given to this venerable lodge in the long years of its existence.

A remark was then made that some suitable receptacle should be provided, where these precious gifts could be kept and cared for. It was talked over among the ladies and several of them volunteered to solicit contributions from the wives of the members.

The responses were so generous and general that the result is, I now have the pleasure of presenting to you this beautiful cabinet, which in a way reminds us of the principles and practices of freemasonry, in as much as its workmanship and the material of which it is constructed are of the best character. In our opinion it is a most fitting cabinet to receive and to hold your valued treasure, Worshipful Master.

I now present to you the keys of this cabinet and with them the assurance of the ladies that they have a strong interest in this organization and desire its present and future welfare and prosperity.

The beautiful and costly gift was accepted by Worshipful Master William B. Randall, who said:

Mrs. Philbrick, Ladies and Brethren I think fate has indeed been kind in bestowing upon me the happy privilege of responding to this splendid presentation speech. As Worshipful Master of St. John's Lodge No. 1, Ancient Free and Accepted Masons, and in behalf of the officers and members of that organization, I accept this beautiful and valuable mahogany cabinet, and extend to the fair donors our deep and lasting appreciation of their generosity and heart felt thanks for this magnificent gift. It will be always cherished and tenderly cared for as one of the lodge's most precious possessions, not only for its own worth, beauty and usefulness, but because it will ever keep fresh in our memories that great event in our lodge's history, the 175th anniversary, and be a perpetual memorial of the loving interest shown by the fairest of the fair, in glorious old St. John's which is an integral part of the grand Institution of Freemasonry which had its inception in the dim, dim past, and has been permitted to come down to us under the watchful care of the all seeing eye above to fulfill its mission of making men morally wiser and better; and thus tending to elevate the standard of virtue of the world.

Following the acceptance the members of the lodge and guests were given an agreeable surprise when Rt. Wor. Bro. Albert R. Junkins presented the lodge with a glass that was owned by Capt. John Stavers, landlord of the Earl of Halifax Tavern.

Worshipful Master, Officers and Brothers:

As we have just been the recipient of this beautiful cabinet the gift of the Ladies it is proper to have something to place in it, and I desire at this time to present to the Lodge this wine glass which was once the property of the late Capt. John Stavers a prominent and active Mason and also Landlord of the Earl of Halifax Tavern. It was probably one of the glasses that was used at the time of the visit of President Washington, General John Sullivan, Lafayette and other distinguished Masons who were entertained by the Lodge at this tavern.

This glass was presented by the Grand Daughter of Capt. John Stavers (Miss Lucy Seawards) to our going back home, he was held up by late lamented brother John Christie, Fitzsimmons who put his hand in his and which after his death was given pocket and extracted $1. The lad to me by his daughter Miss Susan hunted up officer Philbrick and Kelley Christie in remembrance of her and later identified Fitzsimmons as father. And now in fulfillment of a promise made to the members of the Lodge several years ago, that of when St. John's Lodge should have much mistaken. SUPT. MacDOUGAL HAS RESIGNED

Leaves to Accept Position at Westfield Mass.--Resignation Accepted --Other Business of Board of Instruction.

At the monthly meeting of the Board of Instruction held on Tuesday evening, the resignation of Superintendent of schools, James A. MacDougal, was received and accepted to take effect the first of January. Mr. MacDougal's resignation was read by Mayor Badger as follows:

December 5, 1911.

To the Board of Instruction, City of Portsmouth.

Owing to a series of circumstances which have arisen within the last few weeks, I am herewith tendering my resignation as Superintendent of Schools of Portsmouth, and I am asking you to release me from my agreement to serve your Board through the present year.

In making this request, I am prompted by no dissatisfaction, but entirely because there has come to me an offer of a larger field for work in severing the relations with our Board, which have been to me both pleasant and profitable. I desire at this time to express my appreciation of the honorable and straight-forward manner in which I have been treated, as well as for the kindness shown to myself and Mrs. MacDougal, both by you and by the citizens of Portsmouth. We shall cherish the years spent here as among the happiest and most satisfactory of our lives.

Respectfully submitted,
James A. MacDougal.

On motion of Mr. Gooding the resignation was accepted, and Mr. MacDougal stating that he would remain until he had his annual report made up and the budget for the coming year arranged to present to the Board. All of the members expressed regret that Mr. MacDougal was to leave the city, but all recognizing that his new position would be more beneficial to himself. Mr. MacDougal will go to Westfield, Mass., to become superintendent of schools and he will receive a considerable increase in salary over what is being paid here.

In this connection Mr. Hartford expressed a hope that some day Portsmouth could afford to pay salary enough so that they could retain school officials.

On motion a committee consisting of Dr. Thayer, Mrs. Hewitt and Mr. C. E. Hodgdon, were appointed to greatly secure and recommend candidates for superintendent. Mr. McCarthy was nominated, but declined to have signed their intention of having a representative present to exhibit their goods. As much of this exhibition as possible will be shown in the basement of the State House and the remainder in the yard. Practically every piece of machinery used in building roads, except crusher for some time, and had been playing and rollers, will be exhibited, and the piano at the Cabot street kindergarten for very small salary, and grants and catalogues.

It was now proposed to have her give her full time as a regular teacher during the forenoon and in the afternoon at the service of the Superintendent during the rest of the time. Miss Woods was elected.

Mr. Hodgdon for the High school committee recommended the election of Miss Alice C. Smart as a teacher in the eighth grade at the High school. She was elected.

The monthly report of the finance committee was read and accepted.

The report of the Superintendent was read and accepted. The total registration is now 1815.

Mr. MacDougal called attention of the Board that under the present rules the last day of school would fall on Friday, where as the graduation has always been held on a Thursday. It was voted to close the schools one day earlier and have the graduation as formerly.

It was voted to give the use of a room at the High school free of any expense for the evening grapple maintained by the Civic society. In connection with this Mr. MacDougal reported that the night school here was one of the best he had ever seen.

ANNOUNCEMENT AND PROGRAM

Of Road Convention to be Held in Representatives Hall, State House, Concord, N. H.

The first Road Convention held under the auspices of the State Highway Department will take place at Concord on the 12th and 14th of December, 1911.

Owing to the great interest shown in the idea, the length of time has been extended to two days and the scope of the convention has been greatly extended. Approximately twenty firms selling machinery and materials used in road construction have signified their intention of having a representative present to exhibit their goods. As much of this exhibition as possible will be shown in the basement of the State House and the remainder in the yard. Practically every piece of machinery used in building roads, except crusher for some time, and had been playing and rollers, will be exhibited, and the piano at the Cabot street kindergarten for very small salary, and grants and catalogues.

A number of different oil and tar products in their different forms, as used for dust layers and in the construction of roads will also be on exhibit at the service of the Superintendent.

The following is the list of speakers and subjects upon which they will talk.

December 12--2 p. m.

1. Opening Address: Governor Robert F. Bass.
2. Counsellor J. M. Gile.
3. The Present High Law, Its Needs and Suggested Changes.
4. Charles W. Gates, Highway Commissioner of Vermont Construction of Vermont Roads.

this Department is forced by law to take with the towns and what position it assumes, and on questions ought to be brought on wherein the towns think that the relation ought to be changed.

The above list represents the forenoon session, connected with State Highway work in New England the State of New Hampshire should be proud of the fact that its reputation for interest in road work is such that it will bring these men men to its state. It is therefore due to the State of New Hampshire and the towns and cities therein to maintain appreciation by having as large an attendance as possible.

Local Harvard alumni have recently received blanks to be placed on the by the Harvard graduate companies where on the graduate must place his name and class besides several other statistics. These are to be kept for reference to be used in application for tickets to the Dartmouth and Yale or other football games in the future, and thus there to be no possible means for any person to forge the graduate's name in applying for tickets.

It is a new method being attempted by the association, and will be the method in effect in all parts of the country for alumni applying for tickets.

The east harbor Merrill, within a quarter of a mile of its goal got stuck in the ice on the Swampscott yesterday and spent the day just on the ice harbor here. She came up river from Portsmouth this morning with a heavy cargo of coal aboard the progress was easy till the last stage of the journey was reached, when the floating ice and frozen stream made it impossible for her to finish her journey.

She will be compelled to wait for warmer weather, but should the cold continue to any length of her time her predicament will be rather embarrassing. The Merrill is a power craft and has hauled thousands of tons of coal up river this season.

By the falling to 6 degrees above zero yesterday morning the Swampscott river froze, and the effect and the ice, although very thin extended to the channel all the way from here to Newfields. A few more such mornings will close the river for the season. Temperatures were the lowest of the season.

W. A. Simpson of Newfields is substituting as freight clerk at the Boston and Maine freight office for Arthur M. Hutchins of Newmarket, who is confined by illness.

Phillips Exeter academy will close the fall term Dec. 29, and there will be three weeks' vacation, thus enabling all the students to spend the holidays in their homes. The Thanksgiving recess was short on this account. The date of opening the winter term will be Jan. 10. The Robinson seminary and town schools will close on Dec. 15.

A carload of southern pine has arrived from Savannah, Ga., for the back high school which is being erected here.

The East Rockingham Pomona grange will meet here today for its annual meeting. Besides the closed program there will be an entertainment part, and the election of officers will be held. The Pomona grange was organized in Exeter and by arrangements the annual December meeting is always held here.

YOUNG COONEY DIES
THE RESULT OF INJURIESWas Run Over By Automobile on Thanksgiving Day--Internal Injuries Resulted in Death.

Charles Cooney, the seven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard A. Cooney, of Wilder street, who was in a critical condition, run over Thanksgiving day by an automobile, died at the Portsmouth street hospital, at six o'clock Tuesday, directly in front of an automobile owned and driven by Duncan McLennan.

The young lad when taken to the hospital was found to have escaped the rear wheels of the machine broken bones, but it developed that passed over his body.

MURDER FOR "PRINCIPLE"

"I am guilty, but I did what I did for principle," said James B. McNamara, confessing to the murder of 21 human beings in the blowing up of the Los Angeles Times Building. McNamara committed these murders for a "principle"—the principle that labor union law is paramount in this country that it is superior to the laws of the land, and that murder, arson, riot and the destruction of property are permissible methods of enforcing union demands. McNamara, by his example and by his language, has proclaimed this principle, by whose orders and in whose interest did the McNamaras commit their savage crimes? Those questions are by no means answered by their confessions. The investigation must go deeper and further. Above the foundation principles of Mr. Darrow, doubtless did his professional duty by his clients when he advised them to plead guilty. He knew that their guilt would be established by evidence, and that they would be executed. Confession might have the court to impose a penalty was Mr. Darrow's client's employer, organized labor. It was organized labor that raised $120,000 for the defense of these dynamiters. They have sought to have labor pay for the anti-trust law, seeking thus to put the most arbitrary trust in the country in a position where it may freely pursue its oppressive and ruthless policies.

Mr. McNamara asserts that organized labor has a membership of 2,000,000. If Mr. McNamara does not mend his ways, if he persists in upholding the "principle" that unionism is above the law, the public must and will conclude that he believes a majority of the organized wage earners to be men of depraved and criminal minds. That is a monstrous belief. Yet if it is held by Gompers it will be held by others. Labor can vindicate itself against this terrible imputation only by repudiating Gompers, by repudiating all leaders who preach or practice according to the McNamara "principle," who incite to criminal acts or refuse to condemn them. Labor cannot go in the McNamara way, and in the Gompers way. The Los Angeles savages makes that impossible. Nor can it clear its skirts merely by expressing astonishment and dismay when a labor murderer pleads guilty. Nobody can draw up an indictment against a labor union but the courts have already hinted that continuing membership in a union which habitually employs lawless highroads may raise the question whether all members not known to have proper motives against criminal measures should not be treated as accessories. There cannot be two classes of society in this Republic—one organized to support the principle of murder riot and destruction and the other at all times exposed to these outrages. With the lawful purposes of the labor organization the greater part of the people are in entire sympathy. But they will not put up with repeated and defiant applications of the McNamara "principle." Mr. Samuel Gompers, as the chief man of organized labor, must make his decision and make it quickly. If he elects to declare his adherence to the McNamara principle he cannot expect that 2,000,000 Americans or anything like two millions, will be willing to follow where he leads.—New York Times.

GOES TO WESTFIELD

Superintendent James A. MacDougall, who resigned as superintendent of schools on Tuesday evening, has been elected superintendent of the Westfield public schools at a salary of $2600 and will begin work about Jan. 1. This announcement was made by the school committee Tuesday night.

It is understood that the committee offered the position to Mr. MacDougall some time ago, but he declined to discuss the matter with the school committee of this city before accepting. Tuesday he telephoned to Rev. Robert Keating Smith, chairman of the Westfield committee, that he would accept the position.

The new superintendent was born at Oxford, N. S., and attended the public schools there. Later he graduated from the Provincial Normal school at Truro and received the degree of A. B. at Mt. Allison College, Sackville.

For a time he was principal of a Goffstown school and later was head of the Center Grammar school at Northampton, Mass. Following this he was superintendent in the Monson and Brimfield district and later at Brantford, after which he was principal and superintendent of the Ware-Hopkinton-Corcoran district.

He has been in this city for two years. Mr. MacDougall is a member of the Educational Council of New Hampshire and president of the New Hampshire Schoolmasters' club.

Westfield has had no superintendent since September, when C. L. Simmons, for several years head of the local schools, suffered a nervous breakdown and went to a sanitarium.

STOMACH DISTRESS
IS ENDED FOREVERNo Dyspepsia, Heartburn, Gas or Indigestion in Five Minutes

Take your sour, out-of-order stomach—or maybe you call it indigestion, dyspepsia, gastritis or Catarrh of Stomach; it doesn't matter—take your stomach trouble right with you to your Pharmacist and ask him to show you a 50 cent case of Pape's Diapensin and let you eat one 22-grain Triantide and see if within five minutes there is left any trace of your former misery.

The correct name for your trouble is Food Fermentation—food souring. The digestive organs become weak; here is lack of gastric juice; your food is only half digested, and you become affected with a loss of appetite, pressure and fullness after eating, vomiting, nausea, heartburn, griping in bowels, tenderness in the pit of stomach, bad taste in mouth, constipation, pain in limbs, sleepless, gas, belching of gas, biliousness, sick headache, nervousness, dizziness or any other similar symptoms.

If your appetite is fickle and nothing tempts you or you heave gas or you feel bloated after eating, or your food lies like a lump of lead on your stomach, you can make up your mind that at the bottom of all this there is but one cause—fermentation of undigested food.

Prove to yourself in five minutes that your stomach is as good as any that there is nothing really wrong. Stop this fermentation and begin eating what you want without fear of discomfort or misery.

Almost instant relief is waiting for you. It is merely a matter of how soon you take a little Diapensin.

RAILROAD NOTES

George Wilbur has taken the position of night gateman at the Green street crossing.

The oldest railroad man in England, William Frye of Skowhegan who has served continuously on the Maine Central Railroad company for 32 years, resigned his position as timekeeper at Skowhegan last week and will retire on a pension from the company.

Mr. Frye was born 79 years ago. He is a native of Ireland and came to this country at the age of 16 and began his work for the railroad at Waterville on the old Kennebec and Androscoggin railroad. He is the oldest section hand in Maine, having been so employed for 40 years. No accident has ever occurred on his crossing during his service.

Harvey Stuart, fireman on the local street railway, has resigned his position to take place of Saturday next.

Night yard master Edward Regit is enjoying a vacation of two weeks and Conductor Frank Grace is substituting.

The Boston & Maine railroad has announced that 1000 mileage tickets of the Montpelier and Wells River railroad will shortly be good for transportation on the Boston & Maine and vice versa.

Changes have been made among the conductors of the Portsmouth Electric railway. Conductor E. L. Taylor is transferred from the Christian Shore line to Middle street, Conductor J. E. Hill from North Hampton line to the Shore run and W. E. Berry a spare man takes the North Hampton run.

Motorman George E. Willard of the Portsmouth Electric railway has resigned and will shortly leave for Florida to pass the remainder of the winter.

Lewis M. Harwood of Nashua, a former clerk in the Boston and Maine there has taken a position in the navy yard.

Queen Mary's Simply Furnished
Bedroom on the Yacht Medina

NO prodigal display marked the furnishing of the suite prepared for King George and Queen Mary on the liner Medina, converted into a royal yacht for their journey to India. The simplicity of the queen's sleeping room is shown by the accompanying illustration. The greatest luxury which she allowed herself in beds was the installation of a swinging cot to neutralize the effects of rough seas, the ordinary bed being used in calm weather. Queen Mary's suit has a general color scheme of delicate green. The king's is done in light blue. Three cows from the home farm at Windsor, were requisitioned to supply the royal party with milk.

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 6, 1911.

Expressing sympathy and giving aid to the "under dog" is very fine, but when the dog persists in lying on his back with his paws in the air and howls for sympathy after having been put on his feet and given a good chance, the idea is apt to gain ground that certain dogs are born and bred to be just "under dogs."

A PLEASING INCIDENT

No exercises of a public character have been observed of late years in New Hampshire that have interested people from all parts of the country more pleasantly than the recent dedication of the new building at Concord, presented to the New Hampshire Historical Society by Edward Tuck. One of the minor incidents of that occasion deserves to be put on record.

The procession, with the invited guests at the head, proceeded from the State House to the Historical Society building. After the keys of the building had been turned over to the President of the society in the rotunda, the line of the procession was again taken up, to march into the lecture room. As the governor and the marshal of the day, (who headed the procession,) were approaching the doors, that had been kept closed, they saw Judge Cross of Manchester and his wife standing just outside the doors. The Judge hale and hearty, is more than ninety-four years of age—the oldest alumnus now living of Dartmouth college. The Governor graciously requested the venerable Judge and his wife to enter the room first. Judge Cross—reluctant to accept the honor, after a little persuasion, consented. Thus a distinguished son of New Hampshire, who was born six years before the Historical Society itself came into existence, had the honor of being the first person to set foot in this beautiful room, after it had come into the possession of the society. The Judge and his wife were seated alongside the governor, and no one appeared to enjoy the exercises more or lent greater honor to that assemblage than Judge Cross and his accomplished wife.

SHOULD TAKE WARNING

This fatal accident that befell young Charles Cooney, should be a warning to many of our young boys and girls who are wont almost daily to walk in the streets, instead of on the sidewalks. Not only the parents of the children, but their instructors at school should try and impress upon them the fact that they should walk on the sidewalks, and exercise due precaution when crossing streets. It is altogether a too common practice on the part of young boys and girls, in a spirit of dare devility, to run in front of an approaching team or automobile. Only recently a young lad was seen to deliberately lay down in the middle of Vaughan street and the driver of an approaching hack was obliged to rein his horses in order to avoid running over him. Had this boy been injured the driver of the hack would undoubtedly have been blamed for the accident. The practice of young boys jumping upon the back of vehicles and automobiles when in motion is altogether too prevalent and should be stopped, before more accidents occur. Drivers of teams and automobiles have privileges as well as pedestrians and these should be respected. Accidents to our young boys and girls are becoming altogether too frequent and measures should be taken to avert them.

AMONG OUR EXCHANGES

The Controller Bay Episode
By every device of delay within their power the majority members of the house committee on expenditures in the Interior Department sought to give currency and substance to the infamous attack on the honesty of the President of the United States contained in the forged "Dick to Dick" letter which was so gleefully circulated by the enemies of Mr. Taft last summer. They refused to make the prompt and searching investigation that good faith and their official duty required while Congress was in extraordinary session. They now inquire without exposing the nature of his vicious assault on the honor of the chief executive. Even the poor satisfaction of a belated certificate of character is to be denied him, while the punishment of the forger is treated as a possibility entirely to be ignored.—New York Sun.

Spelling Reform Again.

In an address before the Association of Colleges of the Middle States, William H. Maxwell, superintendent of schools in New York city, barked back to the dormant question of spelling reform. He urged the simplification of our English spelling as the most pressing obligation of the American colleges today, and suggested that they should unite in putting through some of the most needed reforms.

The problem involved in our English spelling appeals to Supt. Maxwell with peculiar force. In one of the elementary day schools under his jurisdiction the children speak 19 different languages or dialects, and they naturally approach the English language from at least as many different points of view. How to make the illogicalities and haphazard idiosyncrasies of English spelling stick in the minds of these foreign-born pupils is a problem which no teacher has yet solved. Few of the children who enter the public schools without more than a rudimentary knowledge of English are able to spell much when they graduate.

The same difficulty is encountered in the New York city high schools. The immigration commission which took a census of the high schools two years ago found 49 different races, speaking other languages than English in their homes, represented among the 26,000 high school students. And at New York and along the eastern coast of the continent it has shown a marvelous energy, guided by a definite purpose. It has made itself great in all dimensions, spreading physically from ocean to ocean and working out a system of free institutions the endurance of which attests to the wisdom of those who laid the foundation of the government. Looking over the record of other experiments in national organization, it is fitting to give thanks for the triumphant success of this trial at self government. There have been lapses from the ideal, and there are today phases of the American national life which are unsatisfactory, and problems remaining to be solved, inequalities to be removed, but taking all in all, in Great Britain.—Washington Star.

Thanksgiving
With each recurring day of Thanks giving some fresh cause of gratitude is manifest as one reviews the circumstances surrounding this country. In the course of its development from a few struggling colonies along the eastern coast of the continent it has shown a marvelous energy, guided by a definite purpose. It has made itself great in all dimensions, spreading physically from ocean to ocean and working out a system of free institutions the endurance of which attests to the wisdom of those who laid the foundation of the government. The American people have more occasion for expressing thankfulness for the bounties and blessings of Providence than perhaps any other people in the world. No other land possesses such richness and variety of resources. None has a more beautiful climate, better suited to the development of a strong, progressive people. Broad rivers running in all directions afford free communication and great plains of fertile soil produce food in abundance. Rich mines yield unfailing stores of valuable minerals and metals. In one respect there has been a wanton waste—in the destruction of the forests, which should have been conserved with jealous care, but were sacrificed in large measure of unthinking cupidty. But an era of sanity has come, and now the country is taking stock of its assets and valuing them jealously and providing means for their economic use. Throughout the nation men and women of all classes are vigorously at work endeavoring to solve the social problems, giving generously of time and energy and means to reduce suffering and to check evil conditions and instill a more wholesome concept of life into those who have through neglect and misfortune and illness fallen into bad ways and upon hard times. A great ferment of reform is working, sometimes spasmodically and ineffectively, but in the main to the end of overcoming the obstacles to the full advance of the people toward a higher state of civilization. On this day of Thanksgiving it is idle to dwell upon the weal or woe of the moment or season. It is necessary to look back over a space of time to gain a perspective and thus to compare the present with the past, and in such a survey ample ground for gratitude will be apparent to all.—Washington Star.

President Butler of Columbia, ex-President Andrew D. White of Cornell and Prof. Lounsbury of Yale are open advocates of radical changes in the present system. If they would agree to accept half-way measures they might enlist the support of the more conservative reformers at Cambridge and elsewhere. For since the loud cries of the spelling reformers have ceased to resound through the land there is a larger disposition to concede that some of their demands are justifiable.—Boston Herald.

The Divorce Evil

Three-fourths of the divorce suits are brought by women, and, according to statistics, most of them are for trivial charges. The remaining 25 per cent of masculine applications are made on serious charges. Who is to blame? Can it be that women get tired of the husband who comes home drunk or rum-soaked three nights out of the week? Do they object to the husband who makes a practice of staying out all night? Are there women who they are being imposed upon when the husband exercises a vocabulary that would not be recognized in police society, or when he uses vulgarity, or when he looks up the family purse? We fear there are and we might go on indefinitely citing the many masculine peculiarities calculated to eventually bring a woman to a point where she can no longer live with the man she married. We wonder if men ever stop to think that their wives do not have such habits? If a wife gets on her husband's nerves he can clap on his hat and go around the corner to "see a man." The woman is denied the right to sidestep home unpleasantness. She has got to stick right there with her child and her meals to prepare and bear it. Somehow, it does not seem strange that three-fourths of the divorces are sought by the women. Is it surprising that a woman sometimes feels there is less misery for their souls in struggling on alone than there is in living with husbands who affront every finer thing in their womanhood? To our mind this remedy of the so-called "divorce evil" lies largely in the hands of the men. We do not believe that any woman whose husband is decent and just would think of asking for a divorce, even if she had to live with him a thousand years instead of a little, short life time.—Portland Express.

ORGANIZING PROVISIONAL GOVERNMENT

Pekin, Dec. 5.—It is announced that representatives of eight provinces have held a meeting at Wuchang during which they completed a draft of the articles of federation of the United States of China.

Pekin, Dec. 5.—Tsun Shao Yi, minister of posts and communications, is the chief Government delegate to the conference which is to take the whole situation under advisement. It is reported on excellent authority that the report, who has been the chief stumbling block to a compromise, will abdicate. Yuan has given his consent to the extension of the mandate for a fortnight for the whole area of military operations, including Nanking. The premier engages to despatch no more troops from Pekin, and has already countermanded his order despatching troops to Nanking.

A group of reformers is at present holding a convention in Shanghai, claiming to represent the revolutionaries of the entire country. The delegates assert that they are authorized by fourteen provinces to act as a provisional legislative body. The convention has accomplished little thus far, owing mainly to the same lack of cohesion, which has been in evidence at Wuchang and Nanking. The belligerent attitude of the Pekin Government elicits only sneers from the delegates, who are devoting much of their time to the selection of a capital city for their proposed republic. The revolutionists from the upper part of the Yangtze River favor Wuchang, while those from the lower river regard one of the lower cities as more favorably situated.

The leaders of the revolutionaries assert that fourteen provinces are legally represented at the conference which is organizing a provisional Government and endeavoring to agree on a president of the republic. Wu Ting-fang, who was formerly Chinese minister at Washington and who has allied himself with the rebels, told the Associated Press that all existing differences between the factions would be reconciled. The final meeting of the national convention would be held at Nanking, which had been selected as the future capital of China.

"BABY MINE"

The Laughing Festival Which Ran for a Year at Daly's Theatre, New York, and Which Comes to Boston with the New Year

Boston's laughing festival will start immediately after the holidays with the world's greatest laugh producer "Baby Mine." Margaret Mayo's hilarious comedy. This is said to be positively the funniest play ever written. "Baby Mine," one of Wm. A. Brady's attractions, is literally girdling the earth, is breaking all records in London, where it is now in its second year at the Vaudeville Theatre.

In brief, the story of "Baby Mine" tells of how a young husband leaves his equally young wife because she has lunched at a public restaurant with an old friend of his. True, she does not tell him the nature of the TOR TAXES. Death and taxes are certain, and taxes are like the poor, always with us. The gas company pays more dollars in taxes to the city than it pays in dividends to the stockholders. It pays real and personal taxes like any other property holder, only more so. Every business man knows the multitude of special contributions called for by municipal enterprises. "Boosting" a city costs money, but the competition of cities today makes civic activity a necessity, and the gas company willingly contributes of its means to boost the city.

and, equally true, she is an unconscionable little prevaricator, but her lunch has been an entirely harmless, accidental affair, and that it should lead to a separation would be absurd if the story was serious instead of funny. However, it does so, and the young wife, now thoroughly repentant, seeks the aid of her wife of a friend with whom she anchored. They put their heads together and what happens after that day he left for the play to reveal, though that it is not only brightly written but much comic invention is displayed and taste shown, and the whole thing is a very merry, fresh, earthy and unobjectionable entertainment. It is two hours of bubbling, snapping fun, and hits one just where one chuckles.

Mr. Brady makes the positive announcement that "Baby Mine" will receive precisely the same production in Boston that it had at Daly's theatre, New York, where it ran for sold year. It is in fact the original New York Company, with Margaret Clark, Walter Jones, Ernest Vandenberg and the others of the famous cast.

MANY GYPSY MOTHS

Determined Effort to Be Made to Stamp Out Colonies

State Agent A. O. Pike of Sanford, old agent in charge of the Gypsy moth work for the Maine department reports that the Thaxter woods at Skutumpah where so much time and money was spent two years ago, are again heavily infested in one portion and that prompt and vigorous work will be necessary to prevent the colony from spreading.

The state of Maine has 40 men and the United States 35 men at work in the vicinity, and the combined crews will be put at work at once on these infestations. Colonies of the pest have been discovered throughout York county. In the month of September 30,000 egg clusters were found and in October 15,000.

Chinese Refugees on Their Way To Shelter Behind City Walls

CHINA may yet find that her worst afflictions are not to be found in the bloodshed of battles and massacres. Dreadful as these are, their victims are to be numbered by thousands, but if the fears of some observers of the progress of the strife between revolutionists and reactionaries are realized the country will feel the far more dreadful scourge of famine, which slays its ten thousands or, as has sometimes happened in China, its hundreds of thousands. Already the cities are crowded with refugees, many of whom, like the family pictured in the illustration, with all their scanty belongings on their own or their camels' backs, and the problem of feeding them—as in Shanghai, whose population has been thus increased by 200,000 in the last few weeks—is assuming formidable proportions.

BOWLING

At the Elks alley there was some keen bowling in the roll off of Tuesday evening. It was won by Pochler with the splendid score of 331, while Reimer was a good second with 210.

Their scores:

Pochler.	118	113	113	331
Reimer.	105	117	88	310

THE NEW COURSE AT NEW HAMPSHIRE COLLEGE

By F. E. Cardullo, Professor of Mechanical Engineering.

The New Hampshire College has made a new departure by establishing a Normal course in Manual Arts. So far as I am aware, this is the first course of the kind to be established by any college or university in this country. A great many New Hampshire graduates have become teachers in Manual Arts High Schools, without having any special preparation for the work. From the start, they have commanded good salaries and the college authorities are constantly asked for men who can do this work. There seems to be a real need for a course which will provide special training along this line, and the course has accordingly been established.

The Manual Arts High School has come to stay. Educators are not yet agreed as to the details of the courses which such a high school should give. As a matter of fact we have yet to determine whether a Manual Arts course should be given primarily for the purpose of developing the student, or for this purpose of teaching a gained occupation. There is no question, however, but that the sort of education which a boy or girl gets in a Manual Arts school is at least the equal and very probably the superior of the education obtained in the English or Classical courses of our high schools. I believe that if results are compared, it will be found that boys and girls trained in a Manual Arts course are more intelligent, more observant, and better fitted to be useful and happy members of society than boys and girls trained in other courses of study. If manual training is the form of secondary education which best accomplishes the true purpose of all education, it is a matter of great importance that a corps of thoroughly trained and able teachers shall be provided. So far, three classes of teachers have been engaged in Manual Arts work. The first class are expert mechanics who are masters of a particular trade, but who usually have not mastered the theory of education and do not understand children and their needs. They attempt to teach a boy a trade in exactly the same way as they would teach an apprentice in a shop. They do not attempt to awaken or develop his mind and so long as he learns to turn out a creditable piece of work, they are satisfied that they have done their whole duty.

The second class are teachers who have had a normal school education, and who know something of the ideas and purposes of this form of education. They are not usually skillful mechanics and therefore do not command the respect and attention of their classes. The work which their pupils turn out is usually of inferior grade and habits of carelessness and slovenliness are often developed. The third class of teachers are young mechanical and electrical engineers who usually are not very good mechanics and who understand neither the theory of education nor the child mind. They combine the faults of the other two classes of teachers and in addition strive to give their pupils the same sort of instruction which they received in college when preparing for a profession which the pupils themselves in many cases out at ten have no desire to follow. Of course all of these teachers improve with age and experience and many of them eventually turn out to be brilliant and able instructors. In spite of this, however, it must be evident that they are unsatisfactory at first and that specially trained men would be far superior. It is expected that the course of study which New Hampshire College has laid down will serve to very greatly increase the value of these schools and make them more and more what they should be. The course will make it possible for a young man or woman of ability to achieve success in a rapidly growing and lucrative field of work, and as soon as the work becomes better known throughout the high schools of our state, there will doubtless be a great many who will desire to enter it.

CANNOT EMPLOY YOUNG CLERKS

Boys and Girls Must Be of a Certain Age to Work in Stores During Holiday Season

State Superintendent of Public Instruction H. C. Morrison has sent in any one day.

Attention is also specially called to the fact that no person whomsoever under the age of 18 years may be employed in any kind of delivery service before five o'clock in the morning or after ten o'clock in the evening of any day. Between 5:00 a. m. and 10 p. m. minors may be employed in accordance with the restrictions of sections 1 and 7.

It is particularly suggested to local officers that nobody has any authority to dispense with the operation of the law in particular instances, and it is further suggested that the customary tale of the young boy or girl who is desirous of earning a little money during this time, and that the traders ought to be accommodated during the stress of the Christmas shopping, should receive very little sympathy.

While it is doubtless true that extra help will often have to be put on during this period, the law plainly expects that such extra help shall not be minors whose employment is prohibited. It may well be true that the young boy or girl wishes to earn a little money, even to the prejudice of health, morals, or schooling, but it is pointed out that people who have reached the natural wage earning period and have heavy responsibilities resting upon them have the primary right to any extra employment that may be in sight.

State Supt. of Public Instruction.

WANTS INFORMATION

Richmond Lady Desires to Locate William Franklin Hart

Mayor Badger is in receipt of the following letter from Richmond, Va. Dear Sir:—I am desirous of getting in communication with relatives of William Franklin Hart, formerly of your city.

His mother Sarah (maiden name unknown) died in Portsmouth either in 1875 or 1876, his father was super-cargo and died of yellow fever at sea.

William Franklin Hart, their son, came South when about fifteen years of age with relatives by the name of Green.

Any information which you can give me will be appreciated.

Very truly yours,

AT MUSIC HALL

Change of Vaudeville Tomorrow. Pictures Change Today

The vaudeville acts that has been playing at Music hall for the first three days of this week's have been meeting with great success.

Floretta Clark, a dainty soubrette offers a singing and dancing act. She sings well and her dancing is the best seen by any female performer at this theatre. Miss Clark has a variety of costumes in which she makes an attractive as well as pleasing appearance.

Kolb and La Neva, "The Carlinchist and the Prima Donna" have an act that would please any audience. There is plenty of comedy in the act delivered by Mr. Kolb, both by his witty sayings and drawings and Miss La Neva singing of various operatic selections makes the act pleasing to all.

Beatrice Drew, is becoming more popular by her singing. Last evening responding to several well earned ovations.

The pictures were all good and up-to-date in every respect. Today a change of pictures will take place.

Tomorrow the vaudeville will be changed and Vida and Hawley in a comedy novelty and Marie Hanley, a charming soubrette will be seen on the bill.

EMERSON PIANOS.

There are some good points about most pianos—no doubt about that. Pianos are like people—some folks are pleasant company for a short time, others improve upon acquaintance. As a pianist, I am stronger than its weakest link, neither is a piano to be judged by one or two good qualities. It is the union of the important parts of a piano that settles its value. The EMERSON PIANO has no weak spots. It is an all-round honest instrument. It is like an old friend—it has been tried and not found wanting.
